

J.P. Morgan Named Global Infrastructure Fund Administrator Of The Year

LONDON, June 4, 2010 - J.P. Morgan Worldwide Securities Services today announced that it was named Global Infrastructure Fund Administrator of the Year at the inaugural Infrastructure Investor Awards 2009 sponsored by Private Equity International.

The Infrastructure Investor Awards recognise the firms, funds and deals that best survived 2009's turbulent financial and economic conditions in the infrastructure industry as well as showcase those firms that thrived during the period. This is the first year that Infrastructure Investor has held its poll and over 35,000 votes were cast from practitioners based in over 40 countries around the globe.

Commenting on the award, Susan Ebenston, Head of Global Fund Services at J.P Morgan Worldwide Securities Services, said: "We are delighted to have won the accolade for Global Infrastructure Fund Administrator of the Year. This award recognises the high level of fund administration services we offer to clients across the globe."

Ebenston continued: "There has been a surge in the numbers of infrastructure funds in recent years due to increased investor demand for exposure to this unique asset class. Our global fund services team is comprised of experienced finance professionals who understand the issues that infrastructure fund managers face and who can deal with these complex assets, fund structures, and cross-border transactions. J.P Morgan's Worldwide Securities Services business is committed to providing clients with market leading software and a high level of client service as well as to growing and developing its funds services business globally."
